HARDINESS OF CEDAR OF LEBANON—Perhaps because the Deodar Cedar is not hardy in the North, an error prevails that Cedrus Libani is also not hardy, which is a serious mistake. So far as concerns the nurserymen of Pennsylvania it is classed as a hardy evergreen without any hesitation. Even in the colder portions of the state it is said to thrive when not in solitary, exposed places, while in the Eastern portion it takes its place with the general run of hardy evergreens without any hesitation. At Philadelphia there are large cone bearing trees of it, and these trees are on elevated positions.

Writers say of the Cedar of Lebanon that all that now remains of them in a wild condition consists of a little forest of some four hundred trees, which are rigidly preserved. They lie on a small fertile plateau, situated at an altitude of six thousand and one hundred and twenty-three feet above sea-level. With the exception of a few stragglers the grove is enclosed by a neat stone wall built by a former governor of Lebanon to protect the smaller trees from goats.—From Florist Review, 12-6-23.

"One of the most beautiful of all known lilies. The exquisite blending of tints and colors forming a charming contrast with the rich, deep green foliage. Highly recommended for general culture, both for pot and the open ground. Strong growing and permanent as far north as Boston."—(Bailey.)

"L. Regale came to us from China. With its large flowers, white overlaid with pink and with a yellow throat, it is one of the most stately of all. Treated like L. Speciosum rubrum or L. Aurum, it appears to be as hardy as either and a most welcome addition to what we already have. It can be grown and flowered in pots."—(Fritz Bahr.)

TEN IMPORTANT REASONS

Why You Should Plant My Stock

1. Located in Piedmont Section of North Carolina. Soil and climatic conditions are as good as to be found in America.
2. No grower of nursery stock in America digs, grades and packs more carefully than I. Have had $500.00 offer standing three years to anyone who can show me a better method of packing than the method which I use.
3. We have frost first half of October, very little zero weather during winter and can make shipments with few exceptions any time during the fall, winter and spring months.
4. You get your stock from me when you want it, and when you should have it. This means success in planting.
5. No stock dug and heeled in hot-houses, cold frames, or beds. Your order is dug fresh from the beds where the plants are growing.
6. Each and every order has my personal attention in digging, grading and packing. I give you twenty-four hour service. Just what you want.
7. Born and raised in my father's Greensboro Nursery. Eight years spent in New York and Massachusetts nurseries has given me a wide experience, growing and handling ornamentals. Beware of amateurs. You will lose.

—Think what this means—

Young evergreen stock is scarce and in big demand.

Do not delay in sending your order in. Last spring hundreds of orders were not filled in the ornamental line. Were you disappointed in not receiving stock ordered late in the season.

My stock comes to you packed in pure moss. I have a standing offer of $500.00 to any one who can show me a better method of packing than the method I use. Roots of evergreens must be kept moist. I puddle when digging and again when packing. Exposure to sun or wind will set the resinous sap in evergreens and nothing will revive them. Immediately on receiving shipment unpack the plants at once. Dip the roots in a mud puddle and if you can't plant at once cut open bundles and spread the plants out in a trench. Be sure to pack the soil firmly about the roots. Water but keep the tops dry and cover lightly with straw to protect from sun and wind.

In planting one and two year evergreen seedlings I find the most successful and economical method is to plant in beds. Spade the soil deeply, mixing well rotted manure in as the soil is spaded. Stake out the beds six feet wide and plant in rows six inches apart. Set the plants three or four inches apart in the rows and be sure and firm the soil well around the roots. After which water thoroughly and mulch with manure or leaves, cover the bed with laths or brush as fast as planted, have this shade raised about twelve inches above the bed. You can drive in good heavy stakes on which stretch wire to hold this protection. Leave this shade on the first year, remove in late spring of second growing season. Keep the soil worked with a hand weeder and water thoroughly as often as required to keep the soil moist.

Some of my two year stock can go directly in field rows. For instance, Boxwood, Cedrus Libani, Cedrus Deodara, Chamaecyparis, Cryptomeria, Cupressus in 6" and over, Ligustrum, Pines and Thuja Orientalis. After planting in field rows mulch the plants with manure or straw to protect from rapid freezing and thawing during winter planting and to hold moisture in spring planting.
